Fabio Mora, Biblical icons in new media I Torah in comic books, 1-84

As a part of a pioneering research on Biblical illustrations in new graphical languages a survey of Biblical iconography in some recent comic books is introduced, with a specific emphasis on The Manga Bible, Crumb's Genesis, Almighty Bible, and the Comic Torah (a rare example of Jewish illustrated Bible).

Keywords: Biblical iconography – new media – Manga Bible – Crumb's Genesis – Comic Torah – Almighty Bible

Enrico Morini, New Orthodox saints IV Saints of the traditionalist churches, 85-97

In this recurring series are introduced, with a brief, objective, complete information, saints canonized by the Orthodox church, in this case by churches rejected both by Constantinople and Moscow: between 2010 and 2016 they were Parthenios of Chios, Pachomius of Chios, Catherine Routi, Joseph of Desfina, Hieronymos of Aegina, Chrysostom of Florina.

Fabio Mora, New Anglican saints III American Episcopalians, 99-120

In this recurring series are introduced, with a brief, objective, complete information, saints canonized by the Anglican church, in this case the Episcopal church in the USA at its 2015 general convention: they were Thomas Atkinson – Peter Williams Cassey and Anne Besant Cassey (and Henrietta Lockwood) – Atilano Coco – Charles Raymond Barnes – Anna Ellison Butler Alexander – Dag Hammarskjöld – Albert Schweitzer – Artemisia Bowden - Denzil A. Carty. This instalment refers however also and even more on further major changes planned in the Episcopal sanctoral, with proposed, but not approved deletion of not a few saints and wide lists of new female saints, within a gender and politically correct complete revision of the sanctoral.

Enrico Morini – Fabio Mora, Orthodox churches: a preconiliar panorama, 121-156

This paper gives a complete panorama of Orthodox churches, with their unsolved jurisdictional issues, and a larger attention to schismatic churches and their complex vicissitudes, particularly interesting in their most recent evolutions, as the merger of Old Calendarist churches, not without a short analysis of fake Orthodox churches self-proclaimed in the West by Westerners.
